Sammy Dervishi

Bio

Sammy is a new immigrant who moved to the United States alone, leaving her parents back in Albania. She currently attends a community college, but seeks to transfer to a four-year state university and eventually become a doctor. She is also working while taking classes to pay for her tuition and basic needs.

Age	24
Ethnicity	Albanian
Location	New York City, NY
Marital Status	Single
Education	Currently in Community College
Income	$1,400/month
Occupation	Student/Part-Time Waitress
User Type	Resourceful

Goals

- + To transfer from the local community college to a four-year state university on the Pre-Medicine track. In order to do that, she plans to achieve high marks in her classes and save money in order to pay for her undergraduate and medical school tuition.
- + To improve her English language skills so she can become a United States Citizen and communicate with and establish closer relationships with professors and classmates both online and offline more easily.

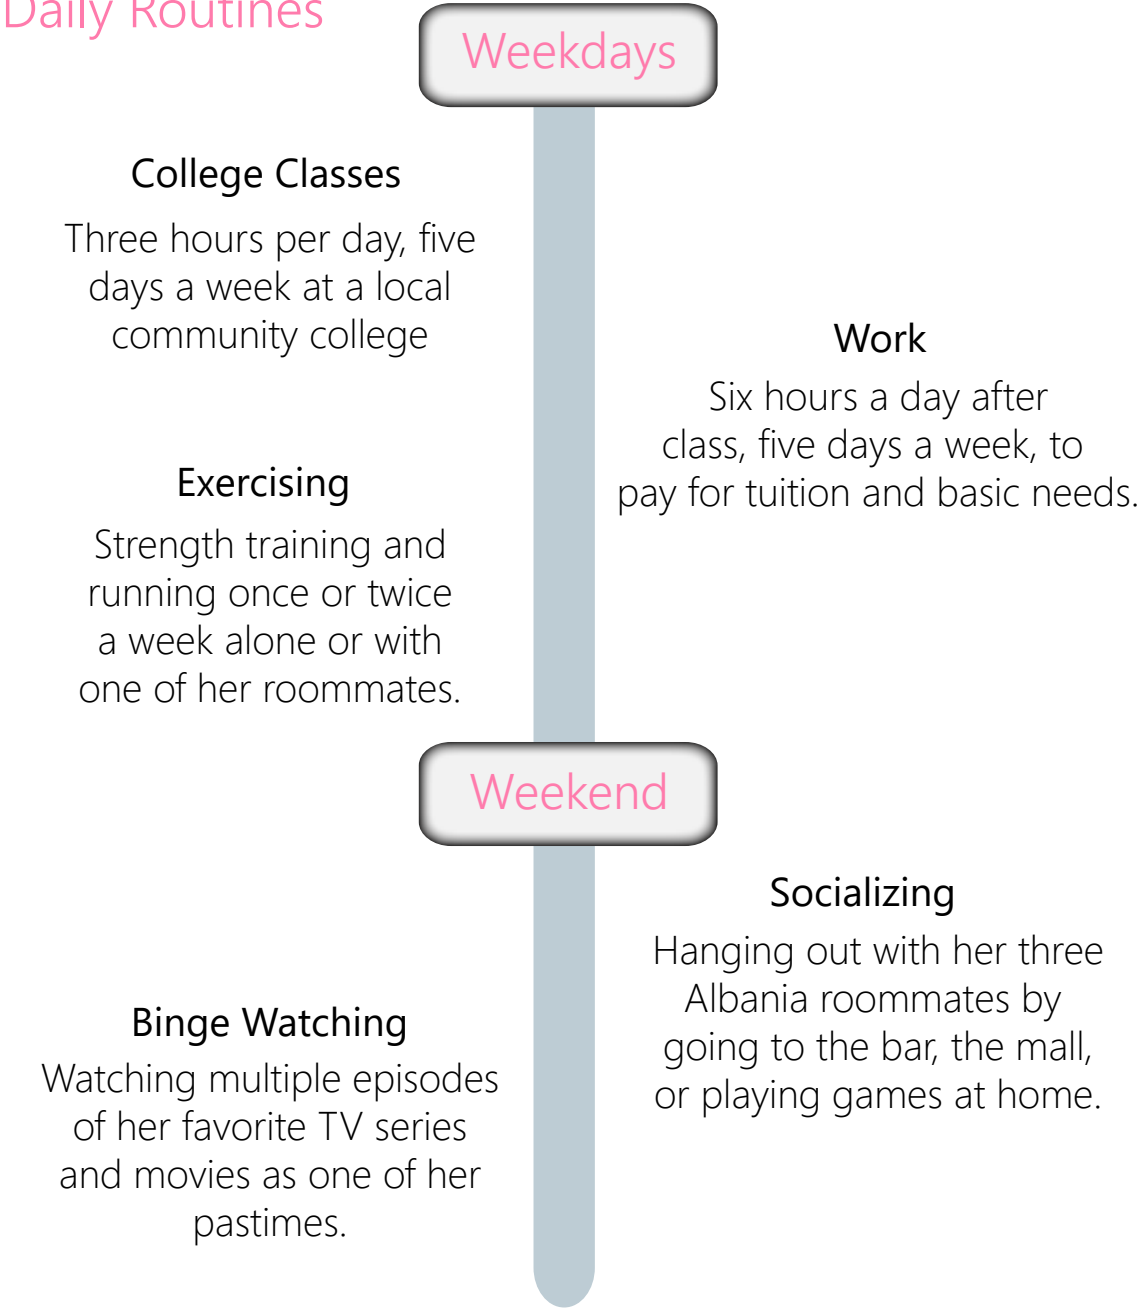

Needs

- + Searching for local organizations that assist immigrant students through academic, financial, and mental support.
- + Specifically looking for internships and better job opportunities that align with her career path so she can improve her resume and her chances to attend medical school. Unfortunately, the community college she is currently attending lacks an extensive academic advising program for immigrant students.

Belief

- + Believes that meeting new people, both in and out of academia, is essential to success and hopes to expand both her online and offline social network as she assimilates to American society.
